Subject: New Houses in Thornbury

I wish to add my voice to those protesting against the proposal to build an additional 300 new homes in Thornbury. The 500 new homes already agreed, which alone will probably mean up to a thousand extra cars, are more than enough for a small market town like Thornbury to absorb.

In addition, once the Core Strategy has been overridden and any development whatsoever has been permitted on the green fields between Morton Way and the A38, it would be virtually inevitable that the entire area would follow suit over time. I feel very strongly that Morton Way should remain the development boundary on that side of our town.

Sincerely,
