Dear Ms Thorne,

When I moved to Thornbury 30 years ago, I understood that Morton Way was intended as a boundary to housing this side of Thornbury. To breach this boundary could eventually see the town stretching as far as the A38 (the builders would be delighted!) The character of our market town would be completely lost by cramming in another 300 houses which are not wanted or needed. There are already numerous properties of different prices and sizes available, which are not selling, surely more houses in Thornbury, on top of the 500 which have already been agreed upon, are not needed. Our limited parking will only drive people out of town to shop! Let's hope the inspector takes all this into consideration

Yours sincerely,
