The Parish Council believe that The Horse Pool has great historical significance due to its connections with the Horse Drawn era being adjacent to the site of the last operational Blacksmith in Oldbury. The water from the pool was used to wash wheels of carts and for animals to drink. Whilst the Forge is no longer there the pool has developed into a wildlife haven for waterfowl, amphibians and other wild life. Additionally the pool has naturalised and contains water plants and other flora and fauna.

It is a tranquil spot which compliments the setting of the area and is greatly appreciated by parishioners and the many visitors the village receives.
